JEAN

Marcia & I, we know a girl
Who's lanky, tall and lean
She rooms with me, she's Marcia's friend.
She's known as "good old Jean".

She hails from a place called Bathurst
A place in the old Nort' Shore.
And in this place with the guy she loves
She'll dwell forever more.

She's in love with Donald Porter
A cadet from C. M. R.
And even while they're far apart
Their love is a shining star.

In May, he'll be down to get her
And off with him she'll go
But we'll always remember Jean
And that we love her so.

She is sweet and kind to everyone
Her marks are average and fair
Her eyes do shine, her smile glows
And her glory is her hair.

So may she always be happy
And have children 1, 2, 3
So keep her safe and happy
This friend of Marcia & me.

He met Mary through the St. Andrew's youth group along with many other lifelong friends, who always made sure to celebrate their friendships together on New Year's Eve. He enjoyed travelling, family camping excursions, and having a beer by the fire with the many friends who would stop by. Chuck is survived by his daughters, Heather (Tim) Sanford and Debra Parker; grandchildren, Cole, Grace and Matthew Sanford; brothers-in-law, Richard Bocker and Roddie Gillis; sisters-in-law, Pat and Edna MacLeod; and several nieces and nephews. OLDEST CAMPUS EDIFICE

The Enduring Spirit of Seminary House

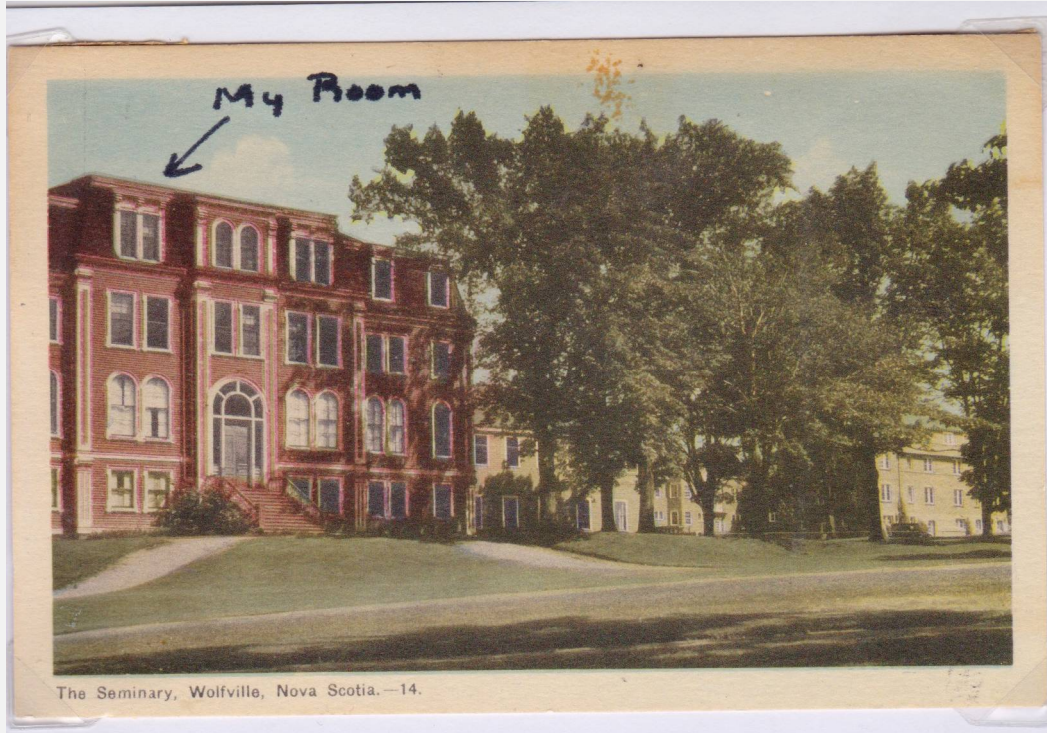

Peter Crossman & Kim Stewart Sept. 1957

Kim, Jean & Marcia, Sept 1957

The Seminary, Wolfville, Nova Scotia.—14.

Did you know that the Sem is the oldest standing building in the Acadia campus? For many Acadia students and Alumni, the Seminary holds memories—memories which only one who has lived there can have. It has a history which dates back to the early days of the university; a history of which not many people are aware; one which in these past few years has faded into the background.

The old Acadia Ladies Seminary as it was built in 1878 gave instruction to girls below the degree level in several fields. A course in music was offered and included instruction in vocal and instrumental. A course in Art was given with studios on the top floor of the Seminary. A general two year Collegiate course including such subjects as English, French, Latin, German, Physics and Mathematics was given which was the equivalent of the Sophomore year at University. Bible was a compulsory subject for all girls. No degrees were given but the graduates could go on to institutions of higher learning. The girls who attended the Seminary were constantly reminded that they were not part of the College.

Shortly after the Sem was built, the west wing was taken over as a college girls residence, and the girls attending Seminary lived in the present college portion. The Horton reception room was the site of the Seminary Library. The room now used as the Horton Chapel was the Dining room and the Gym quarters were in the Home Economics rooms.

Gym classes were held at night from nine to nine-thirty and included as one alumnus of the Seminary said "everything to help our form". Girls were taught how to ride bicycles, and practised in the gym. The main gymnastic exercises were done with dumb bells and Indian clubs. Vaulting was also a favorite sport. The gym suits were navy serge bloomers and tunics, and light blue blouses with sailor-like collars. The uniforms came just below the knees.

The morning rising bell was at 6:30 a. m. and breakfast was served at 8. Between 6:30 and 8, the girls were allowed to go out for bicycle rides if they could get a teacher to accompany them. With the exception of Sunday night upper all meals were compulsory. Inspection was held every day immediately after breakfast. Study hours were from 7 to 9, every night. Gym classes were held every night from 9 to 9:30.

The evening mail was delivered at about nine o'clock.

A custom which some of the girls no doubt would like to see rejuvenated was that of lunches before going to bed. Each night two girls were appointed to deliver the snack - one would carry the pitcher of milk; the other, a basket of bread and butter.

Electricity was not installed until 1900, and prior to that there were two oil lamps per room. Lamp were filled in the lamp room, which has become an ironing room for present Semites. If a girl wished to heat anything she simply placed a bracket on top of the lamp chimney and there she was - no danger of blowing fuses.

The well on the top floor has no historical significance, but as initiations have become quite active, it makes a wonderful place for the high and mighty to view the Frosh. "Freshettes, under the well", are famous words.

Gentlemen callers could be entertained on Saturday afternoons from 4 to 5. A girl's brother could visit her every week, but her beau was permitted to call only twice a month. The name of the young gentleman had to be submitted to the Principal by the girl's parents, and on arrival the boy presented a calling card before he could see the girl.

Church attendance was compulsory every Sunday morning, and recommended in the evening. Girls were paraded to church two by two, with teachers at the first and at the end. Special seats in the gallery were allotted to the young ladies of the Seminary.

Permission had to be granted for girls to go down town. Two girls had to go together, and they were only allowed to go into one store. The lady who looked after the telephone office also sold ice cream and chocolates, and girls were permitted to buy there.

The college sponsored the Star Course of Lectures, which was forerunner to our Fine Arts programmes. Various programmes were given including biographs which were the first movies. Lectures and singers often accompanied the films.

No dances were allowed, but rather receptions where the gentlemen asked the lady to have a topic with him, whereupon a current world situation was discussed. Long dresses were worn on all occasions. Dresses with very high necks and long sleeves had to be worn to receptions. Muslin was the accepted fabric; silks and satins were not permitted.

Naughty girls were punished by being put on limits, which meant they couldn't leave the campus except for church, and all privileges were taken away. It's strange how some traditions have stuck.

OUR CODE

We're from Horton
We raise hell.
When Acadia arrives
They ring the "belle".

We study hard
For the marks we get.
Ask each Monitor,
She won't forget.

When May 19 comes,
We say our good-byes
And homeward go
With tears in our eyes.

For we have found
In the Horton Sem,
Friends that belong
And we belong to them.

SEM: Acadia's White House Declared a National Heritage Site

by Jim Prime

SEMINARY HOUSE, long a symbol of Acadia's spirit and endurance, has now been recognized as a Canadian landmark as well. Canadian heritage minister Sheila Copps made it official in July, bestowing on the venerable residence a national heritage designation. Constructed in 1879, "Sem" is the oldest building on the Acadia campus and is believed to be the oldest university building still in use in Nova Scotia. Despite various upgrades and additions, Acadia's 'White House' still reflects the gracious charm and simplicity of the late 19th century.

Ironically, in 1997 Seminary led Acadia's countdown to the millennium, becoming the most technologically advanced building on campus, thanks to the Acadia Advantage initiative. While still housing students and classes, Sem now assumes double duty as the home of Acadia's School of Education. The residence which only a decade earlier was hard pressed to produce a working fire extinguisher, is once again back on the cutting edge.

The impressive four-storey Victorian structure began life as the Acadia Ladies Seminary, a fashionable Baptist academy until 1926 when its residents became a part of Horton Academy, up to that point an entirely male preserve. Although known primarily to a generation of Acadia alumni as a women's residence, Sem has served many functions over its lifetime. Since its construction, and despite numerous internal and external threats to its existence, it is a more enduring part of the Acadia campus than even University Hall, which has twice been destroyed by fire. Andy Mitchell, chairman of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board which recommended the heritage designation, says that Seminary House "provides a particularly telling example of the nature and setting of the earliest phase of higher education of women."

Designed by Halifax architect Andrew Dewar, Seminary House was constructed by the Rhodes & Curry Company of Amherst. Another wing was added in 1892 and a music department known as "The Barn" was completed in 1899. The Barn included a pipe-organ, five grand pianos, twenty practice rooms also equipped with pianos, a room devoted to choral practice, and a classroom complete with a Carnegie College Music Set (900 records; 250 complete scores; 100 music books, and a Capehart Automatic Gramophone). The Barn was summarily destroyed in 1970 and its contents lost.

Occupying the east flank of Acadia's quad, Seminary House has spacious rooms illuminated by tall arched windows, affording an impressive view of the campus and the Valley beyond. It originally featured a centre cupola, while a tower graced the new wing. These adornments fell victim to the "modernizations" of 1935. The modern marvel of architecture was designed with 'ladies' in mind, convenience being the overriding goal. The basement contained a kitchen, dining room, laundry, drying room, pantry, china room, store rooms, and servants' rooms. The ground floor contained six parlors and eight bedrooms, while the second and third floors each included seven parlors and another eight bedrooms.

Articles from the December 1878 and October 1879 issues of The Acadia Athenaeum enthused about the hot water heating and four bathrooms boasting "hot and cold water," spacious halls and "cheerful and cozy parlors". The structure was seen as a suitable place for "...young ladies of the Baptist denomination especially and of all denominations in general" to pursue their studies. "To the rear, and attached to the main building is a smaller structure containing classrooms and play rooms for the young ladies, so that they will not have to go out of doors at all in order to attend most of their classes. And when they do have to go to the academy to attend class, the distance is so short as to cause no inconvenience. With the present efficient staff of teachers and the fine accommodations, our seminary offers rare inducements to young ladies of the lower provinces wishing a liberal education..."

Speaking on behalf of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, Andy Mitchell suggests that "The institutional history of the Seminary reflects the changing position of women within Canadian universities, while its location, external appearance and internal plan and functions all speak to the way in which 19th century society viewed the higher education of women."

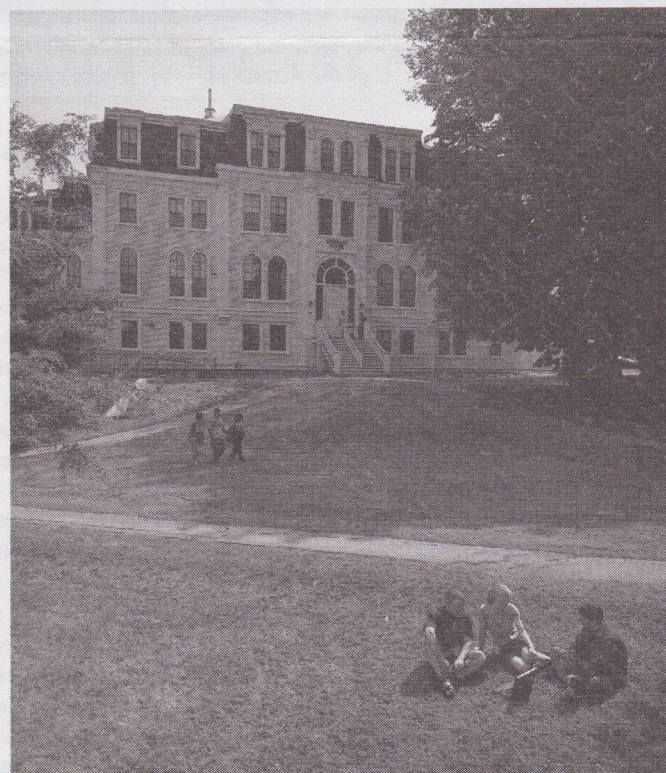

In addition to the spirit documented in the companion story on Phyllis and Don MacPherson (page 5), the term Sem 'spirit' conjures up less comforting images as well. Like every respectable Victorian edifice, Seminary reportedly has its very own ghost. The origins of this apparition are lost in the shrouds of time but several eye-witness reports exist, invariably describing the white, translucent figure of a lady gliding imperiously about her domain or palely loitering on back stairways.

William Porquet, writing in the March 16, 1989 issue of the Athenaeum argues that, "Even when one filters out happenings explainable by antique plumbing, creaky wooden stairs, low rumbles of the old building settling into the mud, and spirits of an alcoholic sort, one is still left with a disturbing collection of what could be supernatural phenomena." Porquet, who did his own anecdotal research on the subject, wisely concludes that, "It's probably best if the folklore remains as ethereal as the ghost itself."

Apparitions, aspirations, and possibly the occasional assignation. That's what Seminary House was, and continues to be, all about. It is entirely fitting that this special place now belongs to all Canadians.

Acadia's oldest building is also its most technologically advanced.

ROOMMATE
SEPT - NOV. 11/54

Nov. 10/57

Dear Kim -

This is just a little note to tell you I am always your pal. I will stick beside you through thick or thin. I hope you have the best of luck in everything in the future & I hope we come back to Acadia next year and get along as well together as we have been this year. Remember our troubles with our room mate and all the good times we've had together. I hope you'll always be the same sweet, innocent girl you are now. You'll make a lot of friends that way and you'll really go places. Don't ever do anything you'll be sorry for. Take it easy and be real good. It pays off in the "end" but then you find the "end" is only the beginning of a new life with someone else - if you follow me! I know what I'm talking about. I'm only 16 now but I've ~~gone~~ through an awful lot since I moved to Fresno for a girl my age. You know just about everything I've done. So you know what I mean. I just hope you'll be true enough to me to keep all these things confidential. I hope I finish my year out at Harton and then can attend Acadia with you next year. We could have a real good time! eh?! So pray for me kid, real hard like!! Remember, I'm always your pal - anything you ever want to tell me & you don't want to have it all over the campus, you can trust in me. Well, you're starting to hitch, so I'll make like the fog & lift. Best of luck. -

“What is a family?”

A family is a blessing; it means so many things.
 Words can never really tell the joy a family brings.
 A family is mutual love; the love of a Dad and Mother showing children how to love and care for one another.
 A family is heartfelt pride, the feeling deep and strong that makes us glad to play a part and know that we belong.
 A family is always home, a place where we can share our joys and sorrow, hopes and dreams, for happiness lives there.
 A family is a bond of faith that even time can't sever.
 A gift to last throughout our lives, a family is forever.

LAKE LOUISE,

Katherine Ferne Stewart & John Edward Macfarlane

I met John near the end of July, 1960 when I was the "sandwich girl" at the Poppy Room and he was a dining room waiter. I looked up from my work station, making no doubt one of the 4000 sandwiches of that year and standing there, watching me, quietly waiting to place an order was this sweet adorable young man with the most beautiful eyes I had ever seen. Being me, I turned back to what I was doing but, when I looked up again, he smiled. And I smiled. He sent me a note on a napkin 'I don't know what to do but do you want to go out tonight?'

For the rest of that summer, John and I were happy - we hiked up to Lake Agnes Teashop and dangled our feet in the freezing mountain stream there; we walked around the lake and back many times, we sat on a bench along the edge of the lake and talked, we went to the Brewster Bus lodge for pancakes and bacon, we stood in each others arms on the small bridge near the stream entering the lake, and gazed at the awesome Victoria Glacier before us. It was a wonderful and sweet and comfortable and funny and fun time. We hated to be apart.

Twice that summer, John and I "dressed up" and joined the staff invited to attend the dance in the ballroom of the Chateau. I didn't have formal wear as my roommates did but somehow I was OK with what I did have, and John made my corsages both times. What's left of one corsage is in this album.

But summer ended, John went to Calgary, I went to Halifax. He entered the field of journalism, became Editor of Macleans magazine and at the time of this writing 2006, he is Editor of Toronto Life. And he seems a happy man.

Margaret Anne Guffie & Frank Emerson Hughes

Marg was born in Waterbury, Connecticut, USA on September 27, 1939. and when I first knew her, her family lived at 17 Glenaden Ave. W in Toronto.

In 1959, after her first university year, Marg joined the housekeeping staff at Chateau Lake Louise, Alberta. But when she returned in June of 1960, she was a waitress in the Poppy Room, the LL coffee shop (where I was the sandwich girl), along with a great group of girls from all over Canada. We had a lot of fun working there and sneaking sandwiches back to the dorm (we were roommates with Joanne Miller) when we closed up for the night (which was verboten).

Marg fell in love with Emerson (Montreal, 16 April 1942) that summer and they both went back to Lake Louise for the 1961 season; that fall she graduated with a B.A. in Psychology from Victoria College, University of Toronto. Marg and "Em" were married on 22 Aug 1964 at St. Michael's College Chapel, Toronto.

They have three sons, who were very active and very accomplished in sports and to whom Marg and Em enthusiastically devoted a much time and energy.

Scott Emerson Hughes, born July 20, 1968

Kent Fraser Hughes, born Jan. 21, 1970

Ryan Laine Hughes, born Jan. 17, 1972

Now, in 2006, Emerson and Marg have six wonderful grandchildren, 3 boys and 3 girls, and live an active life in contentment and harmony in the lovely old town of Beaconsfield, outside beautiful Montreal. Em is CEO of GAAP, a professional search firm and plans to never retire....

John Macfarlane

INSIDE MACLEAN'S MAY 1975

When John Macfarlane returned to Maclean's as executive editor earlier this year, one of the newer staffers began speculating on his age and eventually guessed early forties. Macfarlane was not amused. He's a callow 33. It was an understandable mistake. It's hard to believe that, in this business especially, anyone could do in a mere decade what Macfarlane has done.

As with most people in the trade, he entered it by accident: an angry letter to his university newspaper was so good he became offered a job. Eventually he became its editor, then president of Canadian University Press, through which he met Dic Doyle, editor of the Globe and Mail. Doyle became his employer and his inspiration — "He instilled in me a kind of idealism about the integrity and dignity of the profession." At the Globe Macfarlane wrote editorials, then became entertainment editor. He switched to the Star, where he was also entertainment editor, and then to Maclean's as associate editor. He got his own magazine, Toronto Life, which he edited for 18 months. For another 18 months he was president of Analytical Communications Inc., a major public relations company, where he learned some important truths about himself, not the least of which was that he belonged in journalism.

Though Macfarlane can write and write well, he concentrated from the beginning on being an editor. "I was always an overachiever," he explains his decision. "Very ambitious. I guess I saw the route to the top was traveled more quickly through editing than writing." That's the cynical side, but there is another: "I love editing. To me it's a kind of a birth process, giving birth every time. I've never lost the habit of picking up a thing when it's done and going over and over and over it. I get such a thrill out of the existence of the finished product."

But this is a lasting and substantive thrill, not to be confused with those he experiences in his secret life as a jock, scoring goals in a shinny league or hitting softballs in the Toronto Men's Press League. Last summer he hit his first-ever home run off the Star's Marty Goodman. "Can anything," he gasped, "be better than this?"

Ways We Suggest

The "Art of Eating" becomes the "Art of Dining" when accompanied by Wine and Liquors.

As an Appetizer .....	Dry Sherry, Dubonnet or your favourite Cocktail.
With Crab or Shrimps .....	Most prefer a dry White Wine, Anjou or a dry Champagne.
With Soup .....	A dry Sherry is excellent.
With the Entree of Fish or a Light Meal Course .....	Try a Rhine, Moselle, Graves or Anjou Wine.
With Turkey or Chicken .....	A White Burgundy or a White Dinner Wine is recommended.
With Roast, Game or Steak .....	The conventional choice is a Claret, a Burgundy, sparkling or still, a Chianti or a similar Red Wine.
With Cheese .....	A light Red Wine or a Port.
With Dessert .....	A Champagne or a Sauterne is in order.
With Coffee .....	A glass of Cognac or your favourite Liqueur.

It is not necessary to have a different wine with every course, nor is it essential to use the connoisseur's choice for the meal. Your own taste preference should be your guide. Your Wine waiter is at your disposal and will be pleased to serve you according to your choice.

Golden Hawks To Top Air Force Day Show

MAY 31
1961

The RCAF has announced that their famed Golden Hawks aerobatic team will again highlight this year's observance of Air Force Day in Halifax.

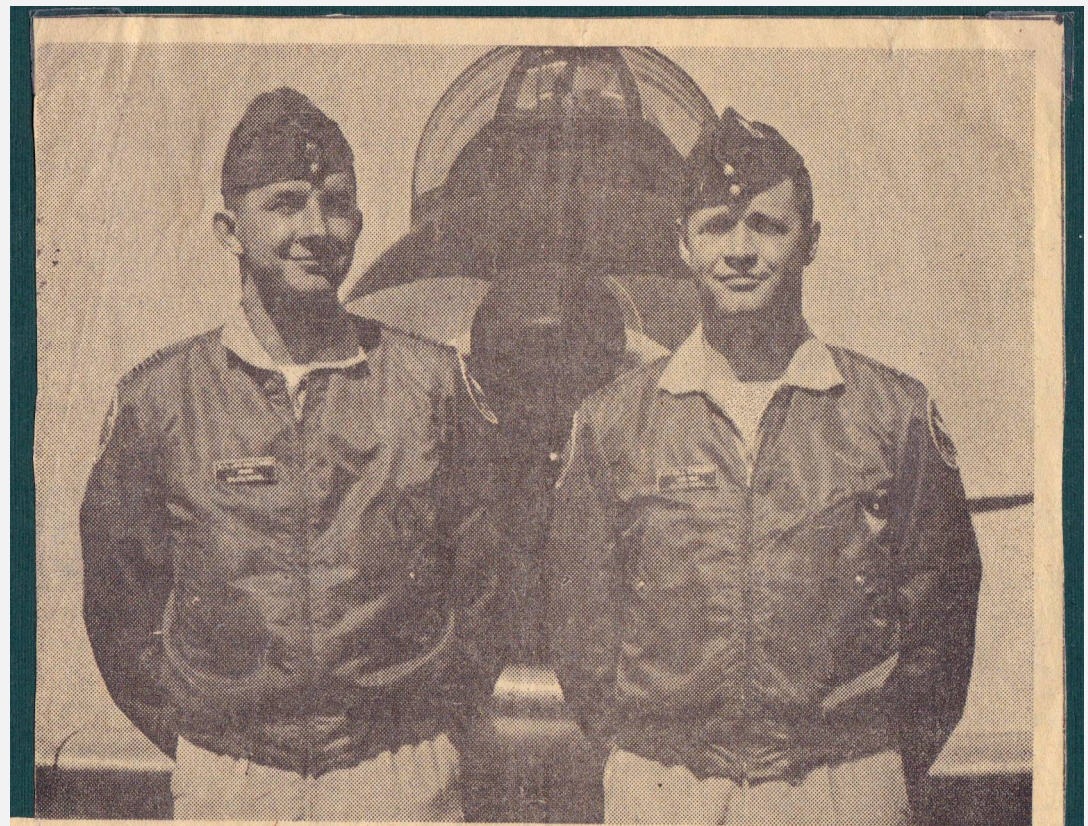

The team of six Sabre jet aircraft, noted for its precision flying displays, will appear over the city at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 31, in a twenty-minute exhibition of formation flying as well as solo and multiple aerobatic specialties.

The air show, which last year attracted record crowds to Citadel Hill, will perform over the harbor area. In choosing this site, Air Force officials point out that maximum safety precautions will be maintained for the show and that an unobstructed view will be provided to spectators in Halifax and Dartmouth.

HAWK VIEWERS — Photographer Lee Wamboldt's camera caught five-year-old Jeffrey Belgood getting a boost from his dad during an exciting moment in the RCAF Golden Hawks display Wednesday evening. Also shown is a section of the large crowd that lined Citadel Hill for the aerobatics peering skyward.

PILOTS PLAN WEDDINGS — Squadron Leader J. D. 'Jim' McCombe (left), 28, of Fredericton, has announced plans to wed Miss Ferne Stewart, sister of Flight Lieutenant W. C. 'Bil' Stewart (right), 27, lead solo with the team, from Dalhousie. Flt. Lt. Stewart will wed Miss Annabelle Mott of Dalhousie. The precision flying pilots say they will wed after this summer's Golden Hawks cross-Canada tour. The announcements were made when the pilots had finished flying at the Calgary Stampede and had an opportunity to see the girls who are employed at a Lake Louise summer resort this season.

Information gleaned from Jim's log books 14-11-10 8:54 PM

Jim's Log Books information of interest to me:

Double check these activities and confirm dates

- Aeros, July
- Drogue tow - May 16
- Exercise WIDE AWAKE
- ¼ attacks and letdowns
- Air fighting
- May 15, 1954 - Dir to Air - 17%
- Before Jim & ME
- June 26, 1959 - Peter & I met the team after the show in Chatham. I was home from Montreal for what would have been MY graduation from Dalhousie High if I had not moved to Halifax. Yeah.
- April 1960 - Jim and Bill to Shearwater - Currie & I met them $$$
- (this was to give me $$ to go by train to Dalhousie for Easter)
- July 11-14, 1960 - I was working at Lake Louise and went to Calgary to see the air show. I went to see Bill at the hotel where the Hawks were staying and met his roommate, Jim; Bill was being interviewed by a very gay reporter and Jim was silently shaking with laughter behind Polly Adler's book "A House is not a Home" --- Funny. But our eyes met and we laughed together ☺
- Cannot seem to find where Bill & Jim came down on Dec 17, 1960.
- Dec 29 - Bill and Jim down for New Years eve which we spent babysitting the sleeping Miller kids. Had steak and salad and a quiet evening, separately from Bill & Annabelle, until Kath & George came home.
- The log book says Jim and Bill flew down on Dec 29 and returned the same day; in truth, they did not return to Chatham until 1:15 Jan 2, 1961.
- The guys came down on Jan 27 - 29 and Feb 10 - 12, 1961.
- At this time, Jim flew to Toronto to break off his relationship with Barbara, da nurse (from SSM)
- Jim was flown down to Shearwater by John Hutt on March 11 as Bill had mistakenly told him that my birthday was March 11 !! He had Sarah Vaughn LPs for me and a card that said "Don't try to hide it. I know its your birthday". Currie chaperoned us.....Bill picked him up.
- I believe they drove down for Easter as I remember Jim and I cleaning out the glove compartment in the '58 Chevy Impala while B&A walked on the rocks at Peggy's Cove. B&A were engaged by this time.

- Jim and Bill came to Lake Louise on July 9th from Calgary in a lovely white convertible. Bill and Annabelle went to a jazz concert at Lakeside and as Jim and I sat in the car, watching the moon rise about the glacier above the shimmering lake, we decided that we wanted to marry when his GH tour was completed. I believe it was me who said, "Yes, I will marry you" but he hadn't asked.
- Jim and Bill came up another time and stayed in a small cabin outside the LL gates; Jim and I went for a drive to Moraine Lake. That is the night he gave me my engagement ring; I LOVED IT and I still do, 56 years later.
- When Annabelle and I arrived in New Brunswick for her and Bill to be married on Sep 28, Jim came up to Dalhousie on the 26th; we drove around and then parked at Camp Chaleur. Who'd have thought it, huh? The camp where I learned to swim and make clay ashtrays and love bonfires.....
- After B&A's wedding, they drove Jim's Chevy to Montreal to get their flight to Nassau. The next day, I took the overnight train to Montreal and Jim was flown up from Chatham by a buddy in a T-33 to pick up his car. He then picked me up at the RR station and we headed off on our own life, stopping over in Dalhousie before heading to Fredericton to make plans for our wedding - back up to Dalhousie to Peter's for my wedding shower on Friday, Oct 13, to a formal dance at RCAF Station Chatham on Oct 14 and then down to Fredericton to get ready for our wedding celebrations for Oct 21, 1961, in one week. The weather was beautiful and colorful.

The Super IQ Test

How Smart Are You Really?

2004

PHD
Certified
PREMIUM TEST

Ferne, your Super IQ score is 113

Your overall intelligence quotient is the result of a scientifically-tested formula based on how many questions you answered correctly. But it's only part of what we learned about you from your answers on the test. We also determined the way you process information.

The way you think about things makes you a Complex Intellectual. This means you are highly intelligent and have extraordinarily strong verbal and math skills. Compared to others you are a highly conceptual and complex thinker and are able to understand information in an abstract form. You also show great attention to detail. In fact, it's hard to find something you're not good at.

How did we determine that your thinking style is that of a Complex Intellectual? When we examined your test results further, we analyzed how you scored on 8 dimensions of intelligence: spatial, organizational, abstract reasoning, logical, mechanical, verbal, visual and numerical. The 3 dimensions you scored highest on combine to make you a Complex Intellectual. Only 6 out of 1,000 people have this rare combination of abilities.
